Lady Visiting Richmond Meets With Severe Misfortune. Detectives Searching.

Lost or stolen, some nine hundred dollars' worth of jewels, including three diamond rings, one breastpin and a plain gold ring, have set the detective bureau to work. The missing tewels were the property of Mrs. E. A. Zoberbier, who is stopping with Mrs. Gertrude M. R. Thalman at No. 810 North Fifth Street. Sneak thieves or burglers. probably sneak thieves, are held to be responsible for the gems, which disappeared on either last Monday or Tuesday, the loss being discovered only on Wednesday at noon.
When the case was first reported to the police it was supposed that Della

Blount, a negro woman who had been at work in the house during Monday and Tuesday, was the thief, but when taken into custody and examined in the presence of Mrs. Zoberbier, it was shown definitely that she could have had nothing to do with the case, and she was dischardeg. Meanwhile other cities in this part of the country have been notified of the loss and a sharp lookout is being kept. There is little probability that the jewels were disposed of in Rich-

Immediately after the discovery of the dicappearance of the gems an energetic search was begun by Mrs. Zoberbier and Mrs. Talman, and this resulting in nothing the detectives were notified. Detec-tive Wren was assigned to the case and went to the house. With the two ladies he searched minutely in all sorts of places, through trunks, bureaus and all over the house and around it, without result. Then Detective Wren went after he negro woman who had been in the lcuse at the time the jewels are sup-posed to have been taken. She was brought to the house and closely ques-tioned, then allowed to go.

Meanwhile the mystery as to the where abouts of the jewels is deeper than at first. It seems almost certain that they have been stolen either by a sneak thief cr one of the many burglars who have been operating in this city for some months past. The house is two stories and Mrs. Zoberbier's room is upstairs. It is possible that during her temporary absence a sneak thief went upstairs and con's sons in the Civil War.

In anhouncing the decision, Justice White, of the Supreme Court, compli-mented all the speakers upon their able discussion of the question for debate, and said that the decision of the judges was based not upon the merits of the ques-tion, but upon the form, manner and dignity of its presentation by the participants in the debate.

In his introductory remarks, Professor Charles W .Needham .of Columbian, wel-welcomed the students of the University of Virginia, and apologized for the ab-sence of Hon. John Goode, who, he re-gretted to say, was prevented from com-ing by illness. Professor Needham presided in his stead.

THE QUESTION.

The question was, "Resolved, That an offensive and defensive alliance with Great Britain would be to the best interests of the United States.' Columbian had the affirmative and Virginia the negative. Mr. Luther M. Walter, of Kentucky, opened the debate for Columbian, dwelling chiefly upon the economic advantages ing chiefly upon the economic advantages to be derived by the United States. He was followed by James R. Caton, of Virginia, whose line of argument was to the effect that the United States and Great Britain could not meet upon terms of alliance, owing to the colonial system of one, which necessitated the keeping of large armies and the comparative isolation of the other. He also argued that such an alliance would be contrary to the such an alliance would be contrary to the tenets and traditions of the United States. Mr. J. W. Howell came next for the affirmative. Mr. Thos. W. Holloman, of Mississippi, was next for Virginia. His speech was graceful and beautifully worded. He brought out the point that England would have five wars to our one and that we would bear the onus of the alliance and draw fewer benefits than England.

Mr. J. Homer Deis, of Ohio, closed for the affirmative with the best speech of the debate. He dwelt on the necessity for finding a permanent market for the

He said that the old feeling against alliances should be left on the calendar of last century.

President Bemiss expects to erect a residence at Second and Grace Streets, to cost about $25,000. Mr. Peebles was selected to make the design, and it has been accepted by Mr. Bemiss. The bids were opened and a number of Richmond contractors sent estimates of cost.

Mr. Peebles said later that the esti-mates were among the closest he had ever seen. He declined to say who had gotten the contract, and it is possible that he has not yet made up his mind. MUCH EXCITEMENT The reading proceeded amid a good deal of excitement. As soon as it was concluded the several werbal committee amendments were formally adopted. amendments were formally adopted.

The House breathlessly awaited for the next move. Mr. Morris, of Minnesota, one of the Republican opponents of the bill, was recognized and offered an amendment to remove the differential from refined sugar.

The amendment was as follows:
"Upon the making of said agreement and the issuance of said proclamation. and while said agreement shall remain in force, there shall be levied, collected and paid in lieu of the duties thereon now provided by law on all sugars above number 16 Dutch standard in color, and on all sugar which has gone through a process of refining, imported into the United States, one cent and $25-1,000 of one cent per pound."

Mr. Payne immediately made the point of order that it was not germane. INTENSE INTEREST.

Mr. Littlefield, of Maine, took the view that the amendment was germane. He aroused intense interest by reverting to the report that overtures had been made in regard to the Crumpacker resolution. An instruction had been made which had not been repelled as it ought to have been. He referred to the report that approaches had been made to the Democrats to enter into "an unholy, ungodly and intamous alliance to sacrifice human rights in order to 'save the face' of certain leaders or protect the profits of an aggregation of orratic caucus or elsewhere."

The Republicans applauded this state-ment, and both Mr .Underwood and Mr. Payne sat down.

APPEALED FROM DECISION.

Mr. Richardson, the Democratic leader, contended that the amendment was in order. As Mr. Richardson concluded the Democrats cried: "Vote! vote!" Mr. Sherman, of New York, who was in the chair, recognized Mr. Grosvenor. Mr. DeArmond suggested that the chair should submit the point of order to the House. He observed ironically that he thought the chairman had not made up his mind. Mr. Morris, of Minnesota, concluded with a strong speech against the point of order. Mr. Sherman, of New York, who was in the chair, sustained the point of or-der, citing a long line of precedents.

Mr. Tawney appealed from the decision of the chair. The vote was taken by tellers. Speaker Henderson was the first member to pass between the tellers in support of the chair's ruling.

CHAIR OVERRULED.

The whole Democratic side rose en masse and watched the Republicans to see how many would decline to vote with their colleagues. Not a Democrat voted to sustain the chair. The Louisiana dele-gation was the first to go through in op-position, then treoping down a side came he Republican recalcitrants 37 strong. The Democrats cheered. When the an nouncement was made that the chair had been overruled—130 to 171—the Democrats and the Republican insurgents cheered. A dozen members were on their feet, but the chair recognized Mr. Payne, the Re-publican floor leader. He warned the friends of beet sugar that he proposed to show his friendship for beet sugar by voting against the amendment.
